b. Basis for Federal Jurisdiction

This case was commenced in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, County of New York. It was removed by Lifespan to federal court, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1332, 1441 and 1446. Federal jurisdiction is based on diversity of citizenship.

c. Description of the claims asserted in the complaint and counterclaims

The first cause of action in the complaint is for breach of contract. Cytira claims that Lifespan entered into a contract with Cytira under which Lifespan agreed to perform specified immunohistochemistry services for Cytira. Cytira claims the contract provided that LifeSpan would perform tissue preparation, validation and mapping steps in connection with the study in question, and that Lifespan would provide reports containing specific information relating to the phases of the study, including a comprehensive analysis, digital images and its recommendations. Cytira alleges that Lifespan breached its contract with Cytira, including failing to complete the study in a timely manner, sending incomplete reports, and failing to perform in a correct manner in accordance with proper scientific standards, causing damage to Cytira.

The second cause of action in the complaint sounds in negligence. Cytira alleges that Lifespan acted negligently in handling and destroying the samples sent to it by Cytira, which negligence damaged Cytira.

In that Lifespan has not yet answered the complaint, there are no counterclaims at this time.

d. Major legal and factual issues

Lifespan has moved for dismissal of this action for lack of personal jurisdiction and improper venue, or, in the alternative, for a transfer of the action to the Western District of Washington. The motion is now fully briefed and is sub judice. In that Lifespan has not yet answered the complaint or filed any counterclaims, it is unclear at this juncture what the precise legal and factual issues will be other than those related to the pending motion.

e. Relief sought

The relief sought by the plaintiffs is damages in an amount not less than $237,760.50. Lifespan has not yet asserted any counterclaims but reserves its right to do so pending a ruling on its motion to dismiss.

2. Proposed Case Management Plan

a. Pending Motions

Lifespan has moved for dismissal of this action for lack of personal jurisdiction and improper venue, or, in the alternative, for a transfer of the action to the Western District of Washington. The motion is now fully briefed and is sub judice.

b. Proposed cutoff date for joinder of parties

30 days after answer

c. Proposed cutoff date for amendments to pleadings

The establishment of such a deadline would be premature because the defendant has not yet answered the complaint.
